Family of 4 Succumbs to N. L. R. Blaze

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Fire that swept through a residence here yesterday took the lives of a family of four. The young mother and two children died a few hours after the fire and the father succumbed to burns early today.

Dead are William I. Wright Jr., 20, his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Roe Wright, 25, their son, Mark, 6, and daughter Colleen, 4.

Wright was vice president and general manager of Executive Air Travel Co. with offices at Adams Field in Little Rock.

Firemen speculated that the flames may have spread from a floor furnace in a hall between set for the 1959-60 school year.

Mrs. J. H. Robertson announced a study course would be held Nov. 12 at 2:30 at which time a film will be shown. The regular monthly meeting of the association will be Nov. 12 at the Elementary School.

Mrs. Matt Hill returned to her home in Dallas on Wednesday after being called here due to the death of her brother in law, Dr. O. G. Hirst.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Roberts of Gurdon were the guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Brodie Haynie.

Mrs. A. M. Rettig was a Wednesday business visitor in Arkadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyce Starnes of Dermott have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Eagle.

Mrs. E. R. Ward spent Thursday in Texarkana.

Mrs. Florine Buchanan is the guest of her son, Donnell Buchanan and family in Tulsa, Okla.

Friends of Mrs. Will Jobe will be pleased to know she returned home Sunday after being a patient in Arkansas Baptist Hospital in Little Rock following surgery. She is at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl Smith and Mr. Smith.

Science Shrinks Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made minutes of each other about 3:30 p.m.

Wright, burned over 90 per cent of his body, died at 6:15 a.m. today.

The Wrights moved to the Little Rock area from Topeka, Kan., in June. The Executive Air Travel Co. operates a charter air service.

Mrs. Wright is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Roe, and her grandparents, Arch Roe and Mrs. Sue Wette, all of Topeka.

Wright's survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur I. Wright Sr., of Green Bay, Wis. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Rhode Island was named by the 16th Century explorer Giovanni Verrazzano because it reminded him of the island of Rhodes in the Mediterranean.

More Witnesses in Bell Rate Hearing

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Southern Bell Telephone Co. presented rebuttal witnesses today at an Arkansas Public Service Commission hearing on a proposed cut in Bell's Arkansas rates.

There have been several previous sessions in the hearing since the PSC ordered Bell to show cause why its rates should be lowered by as much as 10 million dollars a year.

Last month a PSC expert testified that Bell's rates were out of line with the six per cent earnings recommended by the firm's capital structure.

Bell attorneys argued the company.

Over Your Doors & Windows A Few Dollars Is All It Takes

Flex-O-Glass has made our porch a year round, livable room. The children love it!

"Here's an inside view of our large screened porch. If you couldn't see the snow outside you'd think it was taken in summer. Warps doesn't show the crystalline Flex-O-Glass tacked over the wire mesh — it's just like a window between our home and winter. This is the second year we have used the same Flex-O-Glass. We expect to last at least two years more. That means it will cost us only about $15 a year to protect the rest of the house against winter. We can leave our furniture on the porch the entire year and spend a warm, comfortable day for the children. If you want to see how this works to tell other homeowners how much they're missing by not using your wonderful Flex-O-Glass to protect their homes against winter weather, you have my enthusiastic approval."

DOROTHY DIX

If Student-Husband Flirts, Should Wife Quit Her Job?

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I have a well-paying position as a private secretary and I am helping to pay my husband's way through college. He has been making good marks, but lately I have found him playing bridge with attractive young girls, who are also students at the college. Recently I went into the school library and found him sitting in a secluded spot with a young girl. He had cut a class to spend the time with her, and their attitudes were far from casual.

I don't particularly care for the job I have, but since it offers more money than the work I would really care to do, and money is important in my husband's educational plans, I have continued the job. I feel somewhat let down to find out he is spending his time in the pursuit of girls rather than in study. We were quite happy until he developed this "sophistication." Am I being overly jealous? — Hortense

Dear Hortense: Of course, you have an effective weapon to change your husband's conduct: you can quit your job. However, you should make sure of the situation before you invoke drastic methods.

Married students are not exempt from the slow-of trends of so many college men; feminine conquest is to many of them as important as theses. Whether your husband is indulging in casual flirtations to prove he is one of the boys or is seriously interested in one of the girls is a matter you must judge for yourself. The chief danger of flirtations is that they can become serious. In either case you apparently have cause to be jealous — an emotion that is not always to be condemned.

Since you are paying for your husband's education, you have the same privilege of expecting him to work at it as a parent who is sending a son through college. By casual treatment of his marriage vows he is forfeiting the right to the cooperation you have extended. If he is doing no outside work himself, you should insist that he do so. You've been making things too easy for him; he has been absolved of all family obligations and naturally feels free to enjoy college life as well as his unfettered fellow students. It's up to you to make him realize that as a married man he simply does not have the right to all their privileges. Instead, of course, he has the help and encouragement of a fine wife and that should inspire him to a much better use of his opportunities than he is exercising.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
My husband is the father of a four-year-old girl by a previous marriage. Her mother has custody of her and my husband has visiting privileges. The mother is teaching the child to call her father by his first name, is telling her all sorts of truths about us, and certainly isn't taking proper care of the youngster. The child is never neatly dressed. When we send gifts at Christmas or for birthdays, they are returned to us. The girl never wants to go home after visiting us. My husband and I would love to have her with us permanently. What can be done about it? — Mary

Dear Mary: Your husband should take action to have the custody order changed. A lawyer will arrange the details. If the facts are actually as presented by you, it's quite likely that consideration will be given his petition. You have the makings of a conscientious, loving stepmother, and I hope your cause succeeds.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
We have moved into a new neighborhood and my 11-year-old daughter finds it difficult to make friends. She was quite popular in our old neighborhood and I am at a loss to see any reason for her present loneliness. I urge her to go out and try to join other children in their games but it does no good. Do you think I am punishing her too much? — Mrs. H. W.

Dear Mrs. H. W.: You are possibly doing great harm if you nag the child about her inability to make friends. A new neighborhood group can be as difficult for a child to break into as for an adult. If you are friends with your new neighbors, that should provide an entering wedge for the child. The best thing to do would be to drop the whole subject as far as the girl is concerned, and get her interested, as casually as possible, in some group movement like the Girl Scouts.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NAACP Gives Warning to Candidates

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chester B. Current of New York, director of branches of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, says presidential hopefuls must forsake Southern racial views or face certain defeat.

Current, at a state NAACP convention yesterday, mentioned Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) and Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), both of whom have been mentioned as possible Democratic candidates for president in 1960. He praised Symington for refusing to speak at a state Democratic Party dinner here last month because it was segregated.

"They must either forsake the ties which bind them to the Southern position on civil rights and racial equality, or forever resign themselves to being passed over by northern and western liberals and Negro voters," Current said.

He spoke to 700 Negroes and seven white spectators.

Mrs. L. C. Bates of Little Rock was re-elected president of the state NAACP for her seventh term.

Current said integration is proceeding in the United States but it isn't moving fast enough.

"Our government is finding it necessary to tell the truth to the world about the treatment of minorities in this country," he said. "And it is finding it necessary to convey to those who persist in living by out-dated concepts that this is a new day in America, a new day throughout the world."

Current, struck at Gov. John Patterson of Alabama, who he said told Alabama election officials not to cooperate with federal agents investigating Negro voting conditions.

"What Gov. Patterson and other die-hard segregationists want is non-interference with their little program of keeping Negroes in their place," added Current.

Negro Newspaper Ends Publication

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The State Press, a weekly Negro newspaper, has suspended publication.

The paper is published by L. C. Bates, husband of the state resident of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Handbills announcing the suspension were distributed after an NAACP rally here yesterday. The handbills said the paper was suspended "in an effort to gain enough support to bring this type of newspaper to you."

Bates said the State Press was not published last week and no issue was planned for this week. He said it probably would be known in a few days whether the publication could be resumed.

Financial losses and the expiration of a lease on the State Press plant were blamed by the publisher for the suspension. He said owners of the building had other plans for it and asked that the paper move by the first of the year.

Would Amend Sales Tax for Industry

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Associated Industries has started a move to amend the state sales tax law to help Arkansas industry.

The group sent questionnaires to industrialists to determine the effect of a change of state revenue. The organization said that under present law, industries which buy from vendors in Arkansas must pay a three per cent sales tax, but there is no tax if they buy from vendors in other states. The group said this gives out of state competitors a three per cent advantage over Arkansas vendors, to the backlog.

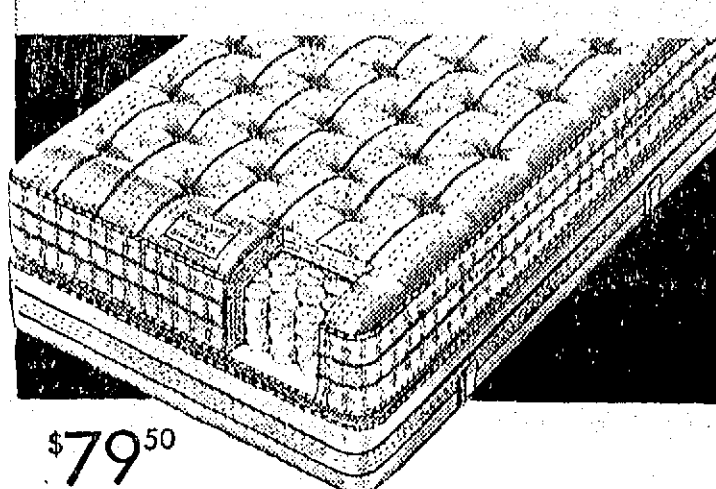

Special Judge to Help Clear Docket

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Federal Judge Roy Harper of St. Louis will hold court in Little Rock for three weeks beginning Nov. 30 to help clear out a backlog of 239 civil cases now pending in the Eastern Arkansas district court. He and Federal Judge J. Smith Henley will work together in Little Rock while Judge Gordon E. Young holds court in Jonesboro. Harper was in Little Rock from September of 1957 to March of 1958 on a similar assignment. The court clerk's office said 35 suits filed last month contributed to the backlog.

Porkers Take Rice But Must Best Mustangs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unbeaten, untied Texas meets Texas Christian and Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl today. The Longhorns beat the Bears 13-12 for their eighth straight triumph and a perfect 4-0 conference record.

Arkansas, within a whisper of the top, closes out its conference campaign against Southern Methodist at Dallas. If Arkansas wins, it might wind up in a tie for the title or might take all the marbles in the event Texas Christian beats Texas then loses a game itself.

Should Texas win, however, the Cotton Bowl will be clinched because it could only wind up in a tie for the title with Arkansas should the Longhorns lose to Texas A&M on Thanksgiving Day. Then, too, Southern Methodist would be eliminated even though it beat Arkansas because of a tie game with Rice that would give the Methodists 1 1/2 games lost.

Should Texas, Texas Christian and Arkansas end up in a tie for the championship, Texas still would get the Cotton Bowl host spot because in such an event the team that was in the bowl game the farthest away would be the one chosen. Both TCU and Arkansas have been in the Cotton Bowl since Texas.

Southern Methodist clung barely to a chance at the title by whipping Texas A&M 14-11 with a whipping and half comeback last week. Arkansas was hanging close in there by doing the same thing in a 14-10 victory over Rice.

Texas Christian was idle but Texas Tech, the other conference member, played Arizona and lost the intersectional class 30-26. It made the league's record against outside opposition 15-9-1 for the year.

Only one more intersectional game is on the schedule. Baylor plays undefeated, untied Southern California at Los Angeles Saturday.

There are three conference games on the schedule but one of them — Texas A&M vs. Rice at Houston — doesn't mean anything since both teams already have been eliminated from contention. Texas Tech plays Houston of the Missouri Valley Conference at Lubbock.

Top Teams Are Topped in Big Upset Wave

By ON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Cotton Letner's foot and Dale Hackbart's arm have booted and tossed the top echelon into a tizzy, what's next for this crazy, mixed-up pastime called college football?

Seventy-two hours ago, Louisiana State was rolling monotonously along with 19 straight victories.

Legal Notice

The annual school election will be held by the qualified electors of the Saratoga School District No. 9 and 11 of Howard and Hempstead Counties, Arkansas, on Tuesday, December 1, 1959, between the hours of 8:00 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. The electors will vote a school tax of 30 mills to be levied for general fund for the operation of schools of said district and for one board member to be elected for Post No. 1 for a period of five years.

The polling places in the district will be the same as heretofore designated.

14 weeks of domination of The Associated Press poll, and speculating on just who might be its opponent in another Sugar Bowl appearance. Right behind was Northwestern, whipping everything in sight in the Midwest, looking toward the Big Ten title and the Rose Bowl.

Then Letner kicked—two conversions and LSU fell to Tennessee 14-13, and Hackbart passed a pair of touchdowns and Wisconsin spilled Northwestern 24-19.

Now mighty LSU is no better off than in a three-way tie for third place in its own league, the Southwestern Conference. Three of the four, either tied or ahead of the Tigers are bowl eligibles of the likes of Georgia, Mississippi and Georgia Tech with Tennessee another half-length behind as a result of a tie to go with its single loss. Auburn, second at 4-1 to leader Georgia (5-0), is out of it because of NCAA probation.

Northwestern now faces the challenge of winning a couple of tough road games, at Michigan State and at Illinois, in an attempt to grab back the roses from Wisconsin.

And when you consider a national leader, look at this partial roster:

Texas, with an 8-0 record and the Southwest Conference lead after a hairbreadth 13-12 escape over three-time beaten Baylor; Syracuse, 7-0 after holding off previously unbeaten Penn State's rally, 20-18; Southern California, 7-0 after thrashing much-thrashed West Virginia 30-0; Tennessee, Georgia, Mississippi, Auburn and LSU in the SEC; Northwestern and Wisconsin, both 6-1 and tied for the Big Ten lead; Clemson, the Atlantic Coast Conference leader, and others as dictated by your sectional preference.

49ers Again Win and Colts Are Upset

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco's 49ers are the surprise club of the National Football League and no doubt about it. But the most surprised bunch has to be Baltimore's world champion Colts, who now have dropped two in a row.

A 46-yard field goal by Sam Baker with 12 seconds left gave the Washington Redskins a 27-24 upset over the chilled champs Sunday, sinking the Colts two games behind the 49ers in the race for the Western Conference title.

San Francisco swept to its fourth straight success, fixing a jinx as Abe Woodson took off on a 105-yard kickoff return in a 24-16 decision over the Rams at Los Angeles. The game at the Coliseum, usually a tough spot for the 49ers, drew the day's largest crowd—94,376.

In the Eastern Conference, three field goals by Pat Summerall carried New York (6-1) to its fifth straight victory. It was a 9-3 job on the Chicago Cardinals that retained the Giants' one-game edge over Cleveland. The Browns (5-2) broke a tie with Philadelphia for second place by whipping the Eagles 28-7.

The Chicago Bears tied Green Bay to third in the West by handing the Packers their fourth straight defeat, 28-17. Pittsburgh tied Detroit 16-10 on Bobby Layne's touchdown pass in the final 3 1/2 minutes. It was the first deadlock of the season in the NFL.

Baker's winning field goal against the Colts, set up by Tom Bratt's interception of a Johnny Unitas pass was his second of the game and was held by Eddie Lee Baron—the little guy who had a finger in all of the Skins' scoring.

Little Eddie, a gully 5-7, kept the Skins ahead of the ever-rallying Colts, completing 10 of 32 passes for 28 yards and matching his season TD-pass total by piling in for two. He also caught the Colts cold with a pitchout to Ed Sulton, who then threw 32 yards to Joe Walton for a fourth-period touchdown that snapped a 10-10 tie.

Unitas, who passed for all four Baltimore TDs in last week's 33-13 loss to Cleveland tossed for two of the Colts' three at Washington and completed 15 of 35 for 264 yards. He now has 19 scoring passes for the season and has run his record scoring streak to 32 games.

Teachers in Revenge Over Arkansas A&M

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For eight games and a whole year the Arkansas State Teachers College Bears had been waiting to get their paws on Arkansas A&M.

A&M sprang a surprise upset on the Bears last year and kicked ASTC out of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference title.

Saturday night the Teachers had a chance for revenge.

And, boy, they got it.

The final score was 55-18 and it would have been worse if time hadn't run out. Halfback Henry Hawk, a little All-America nominee, scored three touchdowns and rolled up 208 yards rushing in 24 tries. It was one of the greatest nights in Henry's career.

It was the ninth straight victory since Teachers' loss to A&M last year, the Bears' seventh straight triumph this season, and their fifth conference victory.

They stand 5-0, tied with Henderson for the AIC lead. The two meet Nov. 20 (a Friday afternoon) at Arkadelphia in the 60-minute payoff.

In other AIC games Saturday, Hendrix and College of the Ozarks fought to a 14-13 draw and Southern State clipped Ouachita 27-7. Harding closed its season with a 47-7 loss to Mississippi College at Clinton, Miss.

Henderson defeated Arkansas Tech Thursday, 14-12.

This week Arkansas A&M plays at Ozarks. Hendrix goes to Magnolia to play Southern State. State Teachers visits Millsaps and Henderson tries tough Delta State.

"I was reaching for Brenda Faye," Mrs. Lacy said. "I almost had her hand. Then the fire just took her down."

Brenda, 4, Myrtis, 2, and Earl and Mearl Williams, six-month-old twins, died in the fire. Brenda's twin brother, Tommy, and Lucious Jr. were the ones thrown free. The other six children, including a third set of twins, were at the home of the grandmother.

The couple and their 12 children, ages six months to 12 years, lived in a large Negro settlement in this 1,100 population southeast Arkansas town.

Mrs. Susan Moore, a neighbor, shook her head. "The whole inside of that house was just boiling with fire," she said.

When Fire Chief Thomas Butcher, the mayor's son, arrived with the town's fire truck, the house was going up like a pile of dry straw.

"Eight minutes flat," he said, "Neighbors began taking the surviving eight children into their homes. A few doors up the street from a Negro church, down the street, hot jazz spilled from a honky-tonk.

Arkansans Face Charge of Rape

SILAM SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—A 21-year-old Silam Springs man will be charged today in connection with the rape last Saturday of a 18-year-old woman near here. Prosecutor Ted Coxsey said.

Coxsey said Raymond Jones, who was arrested in a nearby Oklahoma tavern shortly after the attack, admitted picking up the woman and her husband while the couple was hitchhiking to Fayetteville.

Officers said an attacker drove to a secluded area near here drew a pistol and ordered the husband from the car while he assaulted the woman.

Coxsey said Jones had been identified by the victim as the attacker.

from trying to enter the burning house, put her hands to her face. "Lord, they sure burned up," she sobbed.

Sara looked up at him. Not so tall as him, about Ray's height but not as heavy, Manoel was different from either. He was unlike anyone she had ever known. The hardness had gone out of his face now, and that near-smile was crowding his lips. And his eyes.

"Little gold fairies are dancing in your hair." The flesh around his eyes and mouth broke into a smile, a slow smile, the first real smile she had ever seen on his face; and she took his hand in hers, his big tan hand, and felt the hardness and the softness of it close around her own. They walked on.

Belem, Portuguese for Bethlehem, Belem city of churches. At the corner, on this twisted little side street, a world of its own opened up. A thousand colors of live animals and decaying fish. A thousand sounds of animal and human cries. A thousand sights.

A rock-walled inlet jammed with boats—cargoes, rafts, full, empty; little sails of all the colors of the sunrise, without any sails at all. Men, women, children, all colors, all sizes, on the boats, off the boats: leaping new cord through torn fishing nets, sitting in the stone pavement beside the water, a foot here pushing a basket of fruit toward Manoel and Sara, a hand there drawing in the water of a baring goat, voices like carnival hawkers.

Across the canal a sprawling, multiple-decked building, at a glance the marketplace. In the other direction an ancient church of clean white stone.

In a hole in the wall, at a flowerpot sized table, amidst chatter and clatter, they had rolls and steaming black coffee. Each roll was covered with thick white icing paved with nuts—cashews, pecans, Brazil nuts—and small bits of fruit of every kind and color—pink goiabas, yellow mango, red cherry, green avocado; spices showed through the icing like markings in marble.

"It's too beautiful to eat," she said. "I hope," he said, lifting his cup, "that sometime I make as good an impression as that roll." She and Manoel talked less people than any others in the cafe, but for her his presence was enough.

Inside the marketplace there were shelves, counters, and pens full of everything that had been out on the pavement—and more. Painted rubber balls, toy sailboats, fishing gear and hunting knives—everything.

Sara and Manoel were watching two squawking parrots, each chained to a wooden stand, when suddenly Manoel, lesser, squawked from very close.

"Mame, mame!" Sara turned and saw a tiny brown boy of not more than two with not a thing on him except the tears that streamed down his face. There was no mother near.

Sara stopped beside him and wiped the tears off the little face with her handkerchief. "We will find your mother."

His tears stopped; he gave her a shy smile and climbed into her arms; and before she knew what she was doing tears were flowing down her own cheeks.

Manoel lifted him from her arms. "I'm taller than you, little paleface."

The mother appeared and claimed the child, and Sara went in quickly to a counter of mounted butterflies, mounted in pictures, in picture frames, in trays in lamp shades. The feel of a little boy's arms, the sense of a child's trust left her emotionally wrought.

Manoel stopped at another display close by. If he had noticed her tears, he ignored them.

"Do you know our superstitions?" he asked, rejoicing while he held out a pair of heavy white pendent earrings. "Alligator teeth."

She laughed. "Yes. They keep snakes away."

He put them on her ears, and his fingers touched her cheeks as he did so, and she felt the touch all the way to her breasts.

When they reached her house, she invited him in. He met Adalgiza, Fomita peeked from behind a leaf of the indoor plant, Manoel sat on the footstool and rubbed Preguino's head between the ears. He asked Sara if he might take her to the opera the next night.

She told him yes, tomorrow night. She reminded herself that she hoped to see Ubo alone in the morning. It came to her, then, that she hadn't thought of fire, insurance, or missing rubber since she and Manoel had left the warehouse.

Sara was almost to Ubo's house when she saw Guero's convertible. She went rapidly back the way she had come. She would have to wait until Guero was gone, probably, he left. She would go inside the nearest church. She knew that she stood out on Marco St. as a raggle-taggle gypsy would back home on Colorado Blvd.

All at once the calm of the street was broken with the roar of a cutout and the blast of a horn. Sara jumped behind a bush in a yard, hoping it would hide her.

"All you need not be afraid," she heard a woman say behind her, as the car whizzed past and away.

Sara straightened and turned. A woman stood there and a girl in her teens. "Excuse me for trespassing—"

"All he is a nobody, that man," the woman said. "Telling everyone that he owned a rubber brokerage and the old man was his servant. The things people will say to impress you! Then it came out that he was only a bookkeeper and the old man was his grandfather."

Bill Longley almost brings disaster to the cattle drive he is bossing when he tries to help a rancher's beautiful but deceitful young wife, on "The Texan," tonight at 7 on Channel 6.

The woman lies and tells Longley that Carl Maynor, over whose land the herd is passing, is trying to force her to marry him, and then pleads with Longley to help her escape.

Maynor rides in and accuses Longley of conspiring to take the girl from him. He reveals that she is his wife and threatens to return with his men to kill Longley and destroy the camp.

Jim and Margaret Anderson grow nostalgic while cleaning out the attic and plan a bicycle trip to the country without the children in an attempt to recapture a golden moment of their youth, in "Bicycle Trip for Two" on Father Knows Best, tonight at 7:30 on Channel 6.

Danny Thomas, who stars as New York night club entertainer Danny Williams, dons a number of disguises in an attempt to curb the jealousy of his wife, Kathy, on "The Danny Thomas Show," tonight at 8.

Kathy becomes jealous when she learns that Danny has aided a young, attractive girl make her nightclub debut. In an attempt to get even, she invites several handsome, continental-type gentlemen to her home, unaware that Danny knows her plans and intends, in turn, to disguise himself as the invited men.

Lee J. Cobb will star in the dual role of Miguel de Cervantes, the celebrated Spanish author and "Don Quixote," Cervantes' famed literary creation, in "I, Don Quixote," the Du Pont Show of the Month on Channel 6, tonight from 8:30 to 10:00 p. m.

"I, Don Quixote" was adapted for television by Dale Wasserman after four months of research in Spain. It opens with Cobb, as author Cervantes, being tried by a kangaroo court.

Cervantes escapes punishment, however, by regaling the court with tales of the adventures of a gallant knight-errant, Don Quixote—also played by Lee J. Cobb—who sought glory in a hilarious campaign to right imagined wrongs.

Arkansan Guilty in Diamond Robbery

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An Arkansan and another man have pleaded guilty to interstate transportation of stolen property in the Krupp Diamond robbery trial.

They are James George Reves of Hot Springs, Ark., and William S. Davis of Ogden, Utah.

Federal Judge John R. Ross will sentence them Nov. 20. Maximum sentence is 1-10 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Five others still are on trial in the theft of the $257,000 diamond owned by Mrs. Vera Krupp, former wife of German munitions magnate Alfred Krupp.

The five are John Hagenson of Las Vegas, Marion C. Bowman of San Antonio, Tex., Edward Hay of Texas City, Tex., Joseph Simenetti of Birmingham, Ala., and Julius Berger of Newark, N.J.

Navy Scrapping 13 Jet Planes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy is scrapping 13 Seamaster jet sailplanes built by the Martin Co. under a 441 million dollar contract ended last August.

A Navy spokesman said usable parts and instruments will be removed before the hulks are scrapped.

Martin built 16 of the 600-mile-an-hour Seamasters, envisioned as mine-layers and photo reconnaissance planes. Two were destroyed in crashes.
